

Needlefish are long thin fish whose jaws form a fragile beak. These fish live near the surface in warm coastal waters. All needlefish are predators. They prefer to eat small fish. Needlefish are edible, but man seldom consumes them. Adults can reach two feet in length.